TENNESSEE — State Laws by Topic

➤ AGE ✈

Under the Tennessee Anti-Discrimination Act, employers are prohibited from refusing to hire; terminating; limiting, segregating, or classifying; denying training opportunities to; or otherwise discriminating against an individual with respect to compensation or terms, conditions, or privileges of employment based on age.

It is not unlawful for an employer to:
• discriminate in employment based on age when age is a bona fide occupational qualification; or
• observe the terms of a bona fide seniority system or employee benefit plan, as long as the system or plan is not the result of an intent to discriminate.

For the purposes of the Act, age means at least 40 years old, and an employer is defined as any person employing eight or more individuals within Tennessee, as well as an agent of such an employer.

➤ AIDS ✈

No provisions specified in the general employment context.

➤ ARRESTS/CONVICTIONS ✈

No general provision prohibiting an employer’s collection and use of arrest or conviction records. Tennessee has adopted the federal Uniform Guidelines on Employee Selection Procedures. Consequently, inquiries into criminal record information may be invalidated if it is a discrete step in employment decisions and if it adversely affects members of a protected class, unless the employer can demonstrate that the inquiry is related to job performance.

➤ BREAKS ✈

A 30-minute meal break is required for each six hours employees work. Meal breaks must be scheduled after the first hour of work. Minors: Minors must be provided with a 30-minute meal break after six hours of work.

Restaurant employers: At employers’ discretion and with employees’ consent, employers may establish written policies that allow tipped waitstaff to waive their right to receive 30-minute unpaid meal breaks per six-hour shift. Policies must be posted in at least one conspicuous place in the workplace and require employees to submit their waiver requests in writing. Policies must specify the length of time employees’ waivers will remain in effect and the procedures that apply should employers or employees seek to rescind their waiver agreements. Waivers may be rescinded upon seven calendar days’ notice to the other party.
➢ BREAST-FEEDING ➢

An employer shall: 1) provide reasonable unpaid break time each day to an employee who needs to express breast milk for her infant child, and 2) make reasonable efforts to provide a room or other location in close proximity to the work area, other than a toilet stall, where the employee can express breast milk in private. The break time shall, if possible, run concurrently with any break time already provided to the employee. An employer shall not be required to provide break time if doing so would unduly disrupt its operations.

In addition, a woman may breast-feed her child in any location, public or private, where she is authorized to be present.

➢ CHILD LABOR ➢

➢ CHILD SUPPORT ➢

Employers served with a child support order must begin withholding 14 days after receipt of order. Amounts are remitted within seven days of payday. Notify the court promptly if the employee-obligor terminates.

➢ COURT ATTENDANCE ➢

➢ DISABILITIES ➢

Under Tennessee’s disability law, employers with one or more employees are prohibited from discriminating against an individual based on a physical, mental, or visual disability.

➢ DRUG TESTING ➢

Under the state’s drug-free workplace law, all employees and applicants must be informed — one time only, prior to testing — of an employer’s policy of testing for substance abuse. In addition, all employees must be given a written policy statement that contains the following.

1. A statement of the company’s substance abuse policy.
2. A statement advising of Tennessee laws governing drug testing and drug-free workplace programs.
3. A confidentiality statement.
4. Procedures for confidentially reporting the use of prescription or non-prescription medications.
5. The consequences of refusing to submit to testing.

Revised 2018
6. A representative sampling of names, addresses, and telephone numbers of employee assistance programs and local drug or alcohol rehabilitation programs.

7. An explanation of the right to contest or explain a positive test result.

8. A statement informing the employee or applicant of his/her responsibility to notify the drug testing laboratory of any administrative or civil action brought pursuant to the drug testing rules.

9. The drugs for which the employer will test.

10. A statement regarding any applicable collective bargaining agreement or contract, and the right to appeal to an applicable court.

11. An explanation of the right to consult with a medical review officer for technical information regarding prescription or non-prescription medication.

12. A statement that it is a condition of employment for an employee to refrain from reporting to work or working with the presence of drugs or alcohol in his/her body.

Employers may conduct drug and alcohol testing under the following circumstances.

1. As a condition of employment, following a conditional job offer.

2. If there is reasonable suspicion that an employee has violated the company’s substance abuse policy.

3. Following a workplace injury or accident.

4. As part of a routinely scheduled fitness-for-duty medical exam.

5. Following an employee’s return to work after completing a rehabilitation program.

Note: The above are minimum requirements. An employer may conduct any other lawful drug or alcohol testing of employees.

Notification: If drug or alcohol testing is conducted on a reasonable suspicion basis, the employer must promptly detail in writing the circumstances that formed the basis of the determination that reasonable suspicion existed to warrant testing. A copy of the document must be given to the employee, if requested, and the original document must be kept confidential but retained for at least one year.

➤ PREGNANCY ◀

Coverage: Employers with 100 or more permanent employees at a job site or location must include a provision in any newly-published employee handbook explaining maternity leave rights.

The law does not: 1) affect any bargaining agreement or company policy that provides for greater or additional benefits than those required under this law, or 2) apply to any employer who employs fewer than 100 full-time employees on a permanent basis at the job site or location.

Length of leave: All employees (male and female) with at least 12 consecutive months of full-time employment with the same employer may be absent for a period not to exceed four months for adoption, pregnancy, childbirth, and nursing an infant. Adoption leave will begin at the time the employee receives custody of the child.

Paid leave: Leave under this law may be with or without pay at the discretion of the employer, and must not affect an employee’s right to receive: vacation and sick leave; bonuses, advancement, seniority, and length of service credit; benefits plans or programs for which the employee was eligible at the date of taking leave; and any other benefits or rights of employment. The employer need not provide for the cost of any benefits plans or programs during the period of leave unless the employer provides similar compensation to other employees on leaves of absence.

Reinstatement: Employees who give their employer at least three months’ advance notice of the anticipated date of departure for leave, the length of leave, and their intention to return to full-time employment must be restored to their previous or a similar position with the same status, pay, length of service credit, and seniority as of the date of leave.

Employees who are prevented from giving less than three months’ advance notice due to a medical emergency, which necessitates that leave begin earlier than anticipated, will not forfeit their reinstatement rights.

In addition, employees who are prevented from giving less than three months’ advance notice because a notice of adoption was received less than three months in advance will not forfeit their reinstatement rights.

An employer will not be required to reinstate if it finds that: the employee’s position was so unique that it could not fill the position temporarily; the employee utilized the period of leave to actively pursue other employment opportunities; or the employee worked part-time or full-time for another employer during the period of leave. In such situations, the employer must notify the employee that he/she will not be reinstated.
Under the Tennessee Anti-Discrimination Act, employers are prohibited from refusing to hire; terminating; limiting, segregating, or classifying; denying training opportunities to; or otherwise discriminating against an individual with respect to compensation or terms, conditions, or privileges of employment based on race or color.

For the purposes of the Act, an employer is defined as any person employing eight or more individuals within Tennessee, as well as an agent of such an employer.

References: Employers have a qualified immunity from liability for providing truthful, fair, and unbiased information about a current/former employee’s job performance if requested by a prospective employer or the employee.

Immunity is lost if the information disclosed was knowingly false, deliberately misleading, disclosed for a malicious purpose, disclosed in reckless disregard for its falsity or defamatory nature, or violated the employee’s civil rights under current employment discrimination laws.

Social media: Employers are prohibited from requesting or requiring employees or job applicants to disclose usernames or passwords for accessing any personal account or service they use primarily for personal communications, from disclosing details regarding their personal social media, and from requiring anyone to be added to their personal social media accounts. Employers may obtain information that’s in the public domain.

Employers may monitor employees’ use of electronic equipment and e-mail; and request or require that employees disclose usernames or passwords information for employer-provided equipment or accounts or services.

Employers may require disclosure in connection with investigations to ensure compliance with federal or state laws or to prohibit workplace misconduct and to determine whether employees disclosed proprietary information, confidential information, or financial data without authorization. Employers may also require disclosure to comply with federal laws or regulatory requirements.

Under the Tennessee Anti-Discrimination Act, employers are prohibited from refusing to hire; terminating; limiting, segregating, or classifying; denying training opportunities to; or otherwise discriminating against an individual with respect to compensation or terms, conditions, or privileges of employment based on creed or religion.

Signs containing the words “no smoking” or the international “no smoking” symbol must be conspicuously posted at the entrance to every public place and place of employment where smoking is prohibited.

SOCIAL SECURITY NUMBER PRIVACY

Social Security numbers may not be posted or displayed in public; transmitted over unsecured Internet connections; or used to access an Internet site unless accompanied by an authentication device (a unique password or personal identification number, for example). In addition, Social Security numbers should not be printed on any materials that are mailed to an individual, with limited exceptions.

Employers that maintain computerized data that includes unencrypted or encrypted personal information (e.g., Social Security numbers) shall, following discovery of a breach in the security of the system containing such data, notify immediately, but not later than 45 days, anyone whose personal information might have been compromised.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE

VACATION PAY UPON TERMINATION

The final wages of employees, whether they quit or are discharged, must include any unused vacation pay. Employers are not required to provide vacation days or to establish a written vacation policy, but if vacation days are provided under a specific vacation policy, the value of accrued days must be included as final pay.

VIOLENCE

Employers of any employee who has suffered unlawful violence or a credible threat of violence that can be reasonably construed to have occurred in the workplace may seek to obtain a temporary restraining order and an injunction to prohibit further unlawful violence or threats of violence at the workplace or while the employee is acting within the course and scope of employment.

To apply for a temporary restraining order, an employer must file an affidavit showing: 1) reasonable proof that the employee has suffered unlawful violence or received a credible threat of violence; 2) the employee will suffer great or irreparable harm if an eventual injunction is not granted; and 3) the employer conducted a reasonable investigation into the underlying facts.

Concealed weapons: An individual, corporation, business entity, or government entity is authorized to prohibit the possession of weapons by employees otherwise authorized by law to possess weapons on premises owned, operated, or managed by the individual, corporation, or business entity. Notice of the prohibition must be posted or announced to all affected employees. Employees may store concealed weapons in their cars on the employer’s premises (i.e., parking lots where employees are legally allowed to be). Firearms and ammunition must be stored in locked vehicles and out of sight. Employers are prohibited from firing employees who store their concealed weapons in the cars.
In addition, an individual, corporation, or business entity is authorized to prohibit the possession of weapons by employees otherwise authorized by law to possess weapons at meetings conducted by or on premises owned, operated, managed, or under the control of the individual, corporation, business entity, or government entity. Notice of the prohibition must be posted or announced.

Anti-bullying: Public employers that adopt a model anti-bullying policy will be immune from lawsuits for any employee’s abusive conduct that results in negligent or intentional infliction of mental anguish. Employees who are found to have bullied colleagues will be personally liable for their conduct.

Bullying or abusive conduct means acts or omissions that would cause a reasonable person, based on the severity, nature, and frequency of the conduct, to believe that an employee has been subject to an abusive work environment, including:

- repeated verbal abuse in the workplace, including derogatory remarks, insults, and epithets;
- verbal, nonverbal, or physical conduct of a threatening, intimidating, or humiliating nature in the workplace; or
- the sabotage or undermining of an employee’s work performance in the workplace.

A model anti-bullying policy will assist public employers in recognizing and responding to abusive conduct in the workplace and preventing retaliation against any employee who has reported abusive conduct in the workplace.

➢ VOTING ➢

Employees may be absent to vote for a reasonable time not to exceed three hours without penalty or loss of wages during the time the polls are open in the county where the employee resides. This does not apply to workers whose work hours begin three hours after the opening or end three hours before the closing of the polls. Employees may not be discharged for exercising or failing to exercise the right to vote. The employer may specify the hours of absence.

Wages: Leave will be paid.

Notification: An application for leave to vote must be made before noon on the day prior to the election.

➢ WAGE DEDUCTIONS ➢

Any employee of a state agency may authorize deduction for the payment of membership dues and benefit premiums to be made from the employee’s compensation for payment to an employee association. Employers may make deductions from employees’ pay for health insurance.

Employers that advance employees their wages, agree to lend employees money, or allow employees to charge personal items on company credit cards may deduct those amounts from employees’ future wages. Employees must sign written agreements prior to the transaction allowing the deductions.

Employers must provide employees with written notice of the deductions 14 days before the payday during which the deductions will be made. The notice must inform employees that they owe money, which they have yet to pay back, and that their pay may be offset through a deduction if they don’t pay back the money prior to payday. Employers may not make deductions from the wages of employees who contest the amounts due by filing sworn affidavits with them and the state department of labor and workforce development. Employees have seven days after receiving notice to file affidavits. Employers may then sue these employees for the amounts due.

WAGE GARNISHMENT

The lesser of 25% of disposable weekly pay, or the amount by which disposable weekly pay exceeds 30 times the federal minimum wage in effect during the week the garnishment is to occur, may be withheld. These maximums are reduced by $2.50 for documented dependent under the age of 16 who lives with the employee. The state has no provisions prohibiting discharge, but federal law prohibits discharging an employee for any single indebtedness.

For purposes of creditor garnishments, an employee’s “earnings” mean any compensation, in any form, including wages, salaries, commissions, bonuses, and periodic distributions from retirement plans.

Employers subject to honoring garnishment orders include any person or entity who employs, retains or contracts with another person for services for compensation in any form, including employees, agents, contractors or subcontractors.

WORK AUTHORIZATION

Employers that choose not to require employees to present valid documents must enroll in E-Verify. Records of E-Verify results must be maintained for the later of three years after the date of hire or one year after employment is terminated.

Public contracts: Prior to contracting with the state, employers must certify that they won’t knowingly employ aliens not authorized to work in the United States or employ subcontractors who knowingly employ aliens not authorized to work in the United States.
